Many US-based multinational organizations have recognition programs in place to award their US employees but they do not extend this program to their employees located outside of the US. With today's advances in global technologies, corporations can include ALL of their employees. In today's global economy, it's more important than ever for companies to take steps to recognize their employees.

The competition in the marketplace for top employees is just as fierce as that for products and services. Award Incentive Group can provide a single digital platform customized to suit multicultural preferences, multi-lingual catalogs and websites, and in-country fulfillment for many locations, eliminating "over-the-border" hassles.
